President Reveals Figure In Report to Congress on Lend-Lease Aid.

SAYS AXIS LOSES LEAD

Declares Help During Last Three Months Totals Over Two Billions.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt informed congress today that by the end of this month American forces overseas will number more than 1,000,000 men.

The president, in the seventh quarterly report on lend lease operations, said in a letter of transmittal that the Axis powers "have, temporarily at least, lost the initiative," and added:

"We must do all we can to keep them from regaining it."

Lend lease aid in the last three months up to Dec. 11, totaled $2,367,000,000, he reported. This was more than a third higher than the figure for the previous quarter and four times the total for the three months immediately preceding United States entry into the war.

The president said that since the last report the war had entered a new phase with United Nations' forces attacking from Egypt and North Africa and contesting with the Axis "for control of the African coastline of the Mediterranean."

"The Soviet army, having held with stubborn bravery at Stalingrad, has now assumed the offensive," he added. "The Japanese have been recklessly expending ships and men in the Solomons, a battleground of our own choosing.

"The Axis powers have, temporarily, at least, lost the initiative. We must do all we can to keep them from regaining it."

The chief executive went on to say that "we must bring the full strength of all the United Nations to bear directly against the enemy," adding:

"We must bring together our joint productive capacity and our material resources, our finished munitions, and our fighting power; and we must do this in accordance with a single world strategy.

"That we are making good progress in this direction I think is shown by recent developments, and by this report on the part played by lend lease.

The president said that as the Allied striking power grows and new territories are liberated a

Deadline Tonight For Messages to Those In Service

Here's a deadline reminder—personal messages for Mansfield men and women in the service, to appear in the Dec. 13 edition of The News Journal, will be accepted until 9 p. m. today.

These messages, being handled by the classified advertising department at a nominal charge, will be arranged in a special classified section of the paper, in alphabetical order.

A great many Mansfielders have already placed such messages, and the department in which they appear is going to be closely read by men in the service.

One Mansfielder who placed such a message left enough money for two messages, saying that perhaps some one who couldn't afford it might want to send word to a soldier or sailor.

Within 30 minutes a woman called, saying she'd like to send such a message, but hadn't the money. The man's money paid for it.

Remember, you have until 9 tonight to place a "personal message" for the Dec. 13 News-Journal, which will go to all Mansfielders in the armed services.

Make Room for New Rationing Card In Your Wallet, Mr. Drinker; Ohio Plans Liquor Curb Around Jan. 1

EAT, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow—you'll be rationed. If you have guests to wine and dine, you'll have to tear off a coupon from a rationing card in the not too distant future, according to wire service stories today from Washington and Columbus.

While teetotalers chuckle up their sleeves at this newest quirk in the rationing system, topers may well wonder if there's to be such a thing as a "C" book to keep their "spirits" at the high point to which they've become accustomed.

But teetotaler and toper alike must eat, and there's no fun to be found by either in the news from Washington that meat rationing is to be expected within 60 days.

Liquor rationing for the state of Ohio looms much sooner, according to a story from Columbus, which quotes State Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor as saying ration cards for whisky will be made available by Jan. 1.

This is WAR! And war is (deleted by censor).

So while the whisky drinkers join the nation's motorists on the new "staggered mileage" plan, more sober souls can begin adjusting themselves to a reduction in their meat diet by taking up the "meatless Tuesday" idea which is sweeping the country even as in World war I.

However, "voluntary rationing, such as we now have, won't work," department of agriculture officials declared today in Washington, while urging meat rationing as the only full solution to critical shortages in such defense centers as Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

CITY BEGINS TO FEEL PINCH ON BUTTER SUPPLY

Some Retailers Limit Buying To Half Pound; Others Still Have Ample Stock.

Mansfield housewives are beginning to feel the pinch of the butter shortage that threatens to bring about another drastic change in family living in 1943.

Although the shortage is not serious in the Mansfield area as yet, some retailers, supplied by outside dairies, were forced to limit their sales this week to a half-pound per customer. The majority of stores however were still selling customers "any amount they wanted."

One retailer, dealing with a Cleveland dairy, referred to the butter situation as "terrible," and said that his supply has been cut 25 per cent. "Our demand is so great," he explained, "that we just had to start limiting customers to a half-pound.

Local dairymen agree that the butter supply is short but that "so far the situation here is not serious." They pointed out however that they "don't know what's going to happen."

Rationing of dairy products is likely according to official forecasts. Drastic cuts in canned food supplies, "points" rationing of meat and curtailment of fats for soap manufacture are other major changes on the horizon.

Despite this fact "no one will need to go hungry," according to Food Administrator Claude R. Wickard. "We will be the best fed nation in the world," he said.

But the food administrator and other officials trying to feed the United Nations warned that some eating habits of the American people must change. Wickard's theme will be that the United States is going to have to give up

YOU CAN HELP

Salvation Army Yule Kettles Placed on Streets.

The Salvation Army placed its kettles in downtown Mansfield today to obtain funds for Christmas baskets that will be distributed by the organization this year.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— President Roosevelt disclosed today that he had assigned William C. Phillips, former ambassador to Italy, to be his personal representative to serve near the government of India, with the rank of ambassador.

Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference that Phillips would not carry to India any special plan or formula for solution of the Indian problem.

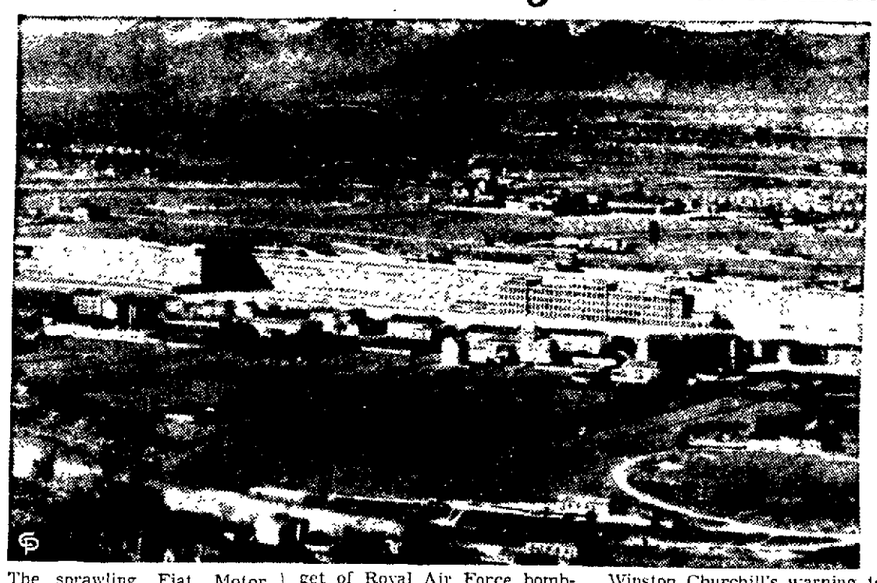
HOSE BURNS

19,000 Feet of It Destroyed In Dayton Fire.

DAYTON —(INS)— More than 19,000 feet of new fire hose, loaned to the city of Dayton by the National Office of Civilian Defense, was destroyed in a flash fire at the fire department hydrant station, officials reported today.

Damage was estimated at $8,000 and city officials were questioning whether the local defense council or the national OCD would stand the loss.

Fiat Works One of RAF Targets In Turin Raids



The sprawling Fiat Motor Works in Turin, Italy's Royal Arsenal city, is again the target of Royal Air Force bombers, making it the sixth time in three weeks that citizens of Turin have been reminded of Winston Churchill's warning to Italy—"make peace or be bombed systematically, without mercy or respite."

BARBERS' CHIEF HITS 'HOODLUMS'

Union President Blasts at Attacks on 3 Shops; Says Members Not Involved.

With a third barber shop window smashing report spurring Mansfield and Richland county sheriffs to a more intensive hunt for the vandals, such "hoodlum" tactics today drew the fire of Walter Mapes, president of local 352, Journeymen Barbers' union, an AFL affiliate.

At Shelby, a reward of $100 is offered for information leading to the arrest of person or persons who hurled a brick through the window of the Amos Oliver shop in the Hoffman building shortly after midnight yesterday. Residents of upper story apartments, attracted by the crash, said an auto raced along Mansfield avenue toward this city immediately after the glass was shattered.

Steve Gerber, proprietor of a shop in the Haring apartments, 153 West Third street, where a window was smashed Wednesday night, attributed the attack to a "price war" while O. B. Wheaton, operator of a shop at Ashland road and Michigan avenue offered a similar explanation for an attack at about the same hour.

"I cannot conceive any union member approving or practicing such tactics," Mapes declared today. "I've been in the barber business a good many years and never could see why anyone should stoop to such low campaigns of fright."

Mapes declared he is confident the vandalism is the work of hoodlums in nowise connected with the barbers' union.

In all three instances bricks were hurled through the windows.

Ten Japs Attempt To Trick Marines, Eight Are Dead!

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—"Hup, two, three, fo', hup . . ." cracked the American voice out of the foggy darkness. "Okay boys, get your stuff together—we're pulling out of here . . ."

The detachment of marines camped on a cricket field on Tulagi island in the Solomons could see ten figures approaching. One young sergeant arose dutifully to his feet and started to join the ten.

Then another sergeant yelled a word that meant "Japs!" to the marines, and their rifles volleyed. Eight of the ten Japs died, including the one with the American education whose voice baited the trap.

"I guess that indicates how tough Tojo is," said Capt. Robert Neuffer, 23, of Hempstead, New York, in relating the incident to reporters yesterday. "That trick took guts."

PLAN CURBS

Republicans Seek Ways To Keep Henderson Checked.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Republican members of the house banking committee, which handles price-fixing and rationing legislation, served notice today that a determined effort would be made next month to curb the powers of Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

Representative Wolcott, R.-Mich.), ranking minority member, told the house yesterday he has ready for introduction in the new congress legislation to set up an appeal board as "a backstop" behind Henderson.

The board would be made up of representatives of labor, industry, agriculture and finance and would have authority to set aside or amend any of Henderson's orders and regulations.

REGISTRATION OF 18'ERS LIGHT

Only Seven Report on Opening Day of Enrollment at Draft Offices.

Only seven of the estimated 200 Richland county youths who have passed their 18th birthday since last June 30 had registered by noon today at the county's three selective service boards.

Boards one and two reported three registrants each, and Board three only one as registration opened for those born in July and August, 1924. They can register from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each week day from today to Dec. 17.

Youths born in September and October will register from Dec. 18 to 24, those born in November and December will sign from Dec. 26 to 31, while thereafter registration dates will be on the individual's 18th birthday, or in case that date falls on Sunday or a holiday, the next day that is not a Sunday or holiday.

State selective service officials estimated that most of the eligible 18 and 19-year-old registrants will be called for service before next March. Richland county boards indicated they would call some of the new group in January.

The new 18-year-olds will be classified for induction in the order of their birth dates, the oldest being subject to call first.

LEGION CALLS FOR ACTION ON ICY SIDEWALKS

Safety Program Also Urges Steps to Eliminate Rail, Fire Hazards.

Urging steps to eliminate ice and snow sidewalk hazards and dangerous railroad crossings, the American Legion prepared today to prevail upon city and railroad officials to take necessary action in the interests of public safety.

Letters containing copies of recommendations and endorsements adopted by the Legion's safety committee at a recent meeting were being mailed today to the officials and others cooperating in safety work. H. C. Sword heads the group which aims to prevent loss-of-time accidents.

The recommendations stated specifically that "steps be taken" to prevent hazards caused by new industries locating here, or by heavy influx into already existant plants, with tracks of the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad companies on Longview avenue cited as a concrete example since the traffic at this crossing has greatly increased with the employment of many new men at the Great Lakes Steel company.

The committee urged that "proper" authorities be held responsible for the removal of ice and snow from the sidewalks.

In line with action taken in various other cities as an aftermath of the Boston night club fire, the committee sought to stress the importance of building inspections, especially those entertainment houses where safety of many persons is involved.

They endorsed the 35-mile-an-hour driving limit as a safe speed.

Members of the Legion committee, besides Sword, are: D. B. Buell, W. E. Rusk and A. F. Busch.

WILL ACCEPT IT

Montgomery Ward Ready To Abide By FDR Ruling.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Montgomery, Ward & Co., said it was ready today to accept a war labor board ruling, if so directed by President Roosevelt, and sign a CIO union contract embodying the union security issue and minus a duress clause.

Although President Sewell Avery announced the mail order house, for the second time, had rejected the WLB ruling, he said he had advised the board by letter yesterday that the order would be obeyed provided the president "as commander-in-chief in time of war" so directed.

It was the second time the company's labor dispute had been referred to the president for action. Mr. Roosevelt upheld the WLB's order of Nov. 5 that the company sign a collective bargaining contract which contained a maintenance of membership clause.

Her Parents, Thousand Others Thrilled by Thebom Concert

By KEN WOODMAN

Although the thousand listeners at last night's Civic Music concert were highly pleased with the singing of Blanche Thebom, Metropolita opera mezzo-soprano, there were two people in the audience at John Simpson auditorium who were completely thrilled.

They were the parents of Miss Thebom, Canton residents, who were hearing their daughter sing.

Also in the audience were the parents of the accompanist, William Hughes, a former Clevelander, who like Miss Thebom, has gone to New York for his musical career.

"You can imagine how excited we were at having our parents here," said Miss Thebom after the concert. And maybe that gave an added lift to her voice and an added sparkle to her personality. But certainly both voice and personality were among the best that have yet appeared on a Mansfield concert stage.

Members of the audience found themselves quickly comparing the young singer to the famed Marian Anderson. Her voice has the same richness. It also has exceptional purity and power. She is beyond any doubt one of America's coming great singers.

There was evidence of that in

Yank Airtroops And Tanks Jab Toward Gabes

Germans Rush to Meet New Onslaught South of Tebourba as Russians Claim Stalingrad Gains, Fight In North Grows Hotter.

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Allied forces repulsed attacks yesterday by two columns of enemy tanks in the direction of Medjez El Bab, vital communications center 10 miles southwest of Tunis, a communique announced today.

(By Associated Press)

A second Tunisian battlefront appeared to be taking form today as United States parachutists and tank forces struck toward the Gulf of Gabes, 150 miles south of the mired Tebourba front, and the Axis rushed troops by transport and glider train to meet them.

Other German forces pushed inland from their coastal bases of Sfax, Gabes and Sousse to meet the Americans whose swiftly developing thrust threatened to cut off the Axis-held bulge of Tunisia from Italian Tripolitania.

Supporting the picked American forces under command of Col. Edson Raff are French infantry, artillery and camel corps experts in desert war.

This is the mixed command which gave German advance troops a decisive licking last week near Tebessa in the Algerian-Tunisian border mountains 100 miles south of the Mediterranean, and then swept on toward the Gulf of Gabes, 150 miles to the southeast.

In Russia the Red army reported further gains on the Stalingrad front despite tightening of German defenses and the force of Nazi counter-attacks.

Northwest of Moscow the pace of battle quickened as the Germans loosed one attack after another in an attempt to turn the northern flank of the Russian drive toward Velekie Luki, 90 miles from the Latvian frontier.

The Soviet information bureau said the intensity of these attacks gained the Germans some ground, but finally were checked.

Roads bogged by recent heavy raids apparently still impeded land action in northern Tunisia, but Reuters reported a new outbreak of fighting near Tebourba where it said the Germans launched new tank attacks against Allied lines.

In most places, however, the latest dispatches told of only patrol activity.

Even with the earlier German supremacy in the air, American and British fighters were said to have been shooting down two planes for every one they lost.

Some British sources estimated that the Germans had drawn 1,000 planes from western Europe and Russia while new British and American planes were streaming up to advanced air bases in a steady flow.

These sources estimated that on the ground British and American forces along the Tebourba-Mateur front and Axis troops defending that line were currently of about even strength.

A British communique from Cairo said the British Eighth army had not yet touched off

FEELER: Hitler Sounds Out Balkans on Italy's 'Default'

(By International News Service)

LONDON—A Reuter dispatch from Moscow reported today that Adolf Hitler is sounding out Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania regarding their attitude in event of Italy's withdrawal from the war.

The dispatch gave no details beyond saying that Hitler had instructed his envoys in Budapest, Sofia and Bucharest to make appropriate inquiries.

While lacking any official confirmation whatever, the report naturally revived speculation over the possibility of an early internal collapse in Italy.

Vatican Asks Rome Be Spared Bombs

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Authoritative sources in Washington today disclosed that the vatican has made strong appeals to the United States and Great Britain to spare Rome from aerial bombardment.

As a result of the vatican appeals, the view prevails in informed quarters that Rome may be spared from the devastating aerial attacks which are now being carried out against other Italian cities.

The vatican, it was learned authoritatively, takes the position that Rome is a holy city and that, in view of the sacred place it holds in Christiandom, it should be spared from destruction.

Consideration for the vatican's attitude, and especially reluctance to endanger the Vatican City itself, is understood to be largely, if not entirely, responsible for the

HAND-TO-HAND: Allied Army Close In on Japs Around Buna

(By International News Service)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—Bitter hand-to-hand fighting raged today around the Japanese base of Buna as American and Australian troops struck mighty blows to blast the Nipponese from their last remaining foothold in southeast New Guinea.

The Allied ground forces smashed mercilessly at Jap defense positions after quelling a second desperate enemy counter-attack with concentrated artillery and machine-gun fire.

An official headquarters communique, revealing the increased fury of battle around Buna, confirmed an earlier announcement by Australian Prime Minister John Curtin that Allied jungle fighters had completely occupied the Gona area to the northwest.

Allied airmen giving full support to the besieging ground troops carried out relentless sweeps over the battle area.

Australian forces which captured Gona, many of them veterans of the campaign in Malaya, began advancing southward along the coast toward Cape Killerton, six miles above Buna, after concluding mopping-up operations in the Gona area.

With the additional pressure that can be thrown against the Japs at Buna by forces released through the successful occupation of Gona, the Allies were expected to let loose shortly with a knockout blow against Buna to annihi-

HOLLYWOOD — Life-is-like-that department: Except for one scene, Marjorie Reynolds plays her whole "Dixie" role in a wheelchair. During production she took a fall on the stairs of her apartment, skinning her ankle and cracking her knee. She wasn't bothered, not with another day in her wheelchair ahead.

So the next day was the day for her one scene on foot—she had to chase Bing Crosby down the street to her home, which was on fire. If she seems to limp in the scene, you'll know why.

77TH CONGRESS GETS READY FOR ADJOURNMENT

Enactment of Any Disputed Measures Held Unlikely as Recess Talk Grows.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The 77th congress was dying on its feet today with leaders reported ready to agree to suspend business after next Tuesday until the new congress comes in on January 4.

The senate met with a minor log-jam of legislation and a filibuster confronting it, with the result that leaders abandoned virtually all hope of enacting any measure considered at all controversial.

Sen. Pat McCarran (D) Nev., was to resume his filibustering efforts to forestall consideration of the Green silver bill, while administration leaders withheld a request for action on the $5,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill.

Leaders admitted that the silver bill cannot be passed, while Sen. Tobey (R) N. H., a member of the banking committee, said he understood that the RFC bill would be shunted over until next session.

While "farm bloc" leaders had demanded a vote on a house-approved bill revising upward the parity price formula, this measure also was admittedly dead.

The government employes pay increase bill, the Ellender rubber measure and other legislation was on the calendar but appeared likely to die with the ending of the session.

The senate was expected to recess from today until Tuesday without passing legislation, and then to lay aside the silver bill, and close up business for the session after enacting a few noncontroversial bills.

The only important measure facing the house—the war powers bill permitting the president to suspend tariff laws—was killed by action of the ways and means committee.

TEACHERS ASK FOR PROTECTION

Call on Police as Beatings Follow 'Zoot Suit' Killing of Instructor.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — The slap-stick comedy predicament of a teacher being spanked by an overgrown pupil today assumed serious proportions as New York city teachers sought police protection against unruly students.

In an unprecedented move following the fatal shooting of one high school instructor and the beating of several other teachers, various teachers' organizations appealed directly to the police over the heads of the board of education. Police acted immediately, assuring complete co-operation.

Greatest number and most serious complaints have come from teachers assigned to schools in the so-called "underprivileged" areas of the city. Indignities reported ranged from actual beatings of teachers by groups of pupils to throwing of ink-wells and "wait 'till I get you outside." threats.

The pleas followed the "zoot suit" slaying of Irwin Goodman, 49, instructor in a Brooklyn junior high school, by two boys after he had reprimanded them for smoking. The slayers are serving prison terms in Sing Sing prison.

As one of the teachers put it, "teaching today has become a hazardous occupation."

KEY WAR WORKERS GET FLORIDA VACATIONS SO THEY'LL BE 'FIT'

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Key workers at the fabulous Jack and Heintz company, which has been criticized by some industries for "spoiling" its employes, are vacationing in Florida at company expense to "keep fit" for their jobs in the busy war plant.

William S. Jack, company president, said today that every two weeks 11 couples are sent to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where the concern maintains 11 apartments.

"This allows for four days of travel and 10 days at the seaside, where these employes may enjoy the sunshine and the sea air and recuperate," Jack said. "They come back ready to resume their 12-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week confining jobs with added enthusiasm and improved physical condition."

The idea back of these vacations in the south is to maintain the efficiency of some 200 men "who have not lost a minute in more than a year.

"These men are vital to our production program, and we must keep them fit, as we have a big job to do to help win this war," Jack declared.

"We go through our plants and find men on whom the grind is beginning to tell and select those who are tired or in ill health and send them to Florida. Fortunately, we are able to replace them with other men while they are away."

Next summer, the company expects to send 30 men north to lake resorts every 10 days, the president added.

Jack and Heintz, which has plants here and at nearby Bedford, early this year was investigated by a congressional committee looking into the plant's profits on contracts for electric airplane starters. Testimony before the committee revealed that enormous bonuses had been paid to officials and employes of the concern.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Veley Main said Schultz fired three shots at him when the officer went to his shop to arrest him for failure to register.

What was scheduled to be a full session in common pleas court yesterday dwindled to almost nothing, as an indirect result of the war. Five of the nine divorce actions set for hearing were postponed indefinitely since the husbands were serving in the armed forces. Principals of two of the four remaining cases failed to appear with the result that their petitions were dismissed, leaving only two couples whose marriage bans were dissolved.

U. S. FLIERS MEETING LESS OPPOSITION

Observers Say Japanese Still Have Strength But It's Scattered.

By JOSEPH R. BORS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Virtual collapse of Japan as a major air power is reflected today in battle reports which show that American army, navy and marine corps airmen control the skies in every active Pacific war theater.

In the Aleutians, the Solomons and New Guinea, U. S. combat pilots have encountered little or no aerial opposition for weeks. This fact alone foreshadows an early aerial offensive against Jap bases on New Britain and the northern Solomons.

Navy men believe that even Truk, Nippon's greatest and most powerful Pacific base, may become a target for aerial attack when American and United Nations forces are able to expand their present airfield facilities.

According to these sources, Japan lost the cream of its pilot personnel in the long string of defeats in the Coral sea, Midway and in the Solomons campaign.

With the destruction of the major portion of Japan's carrier fleet in those battles, naval sources believe firmly that the Japs lost their "first team," and that the enemy will be unable to catch up with America's plane construction and pilot training programs.

The result has been that the Japanese garrisons in New Guinea, Guadalcanal and the Aleutians now face annihilation because the enemy is unable to give them adequate air support.

Although Japan still is believed to have formidable air reserves, war analysts assert that these are now spread over wide areas throughout the Pacific to protect vital bases and Japan itself.

Just how one-sided the Pacific air conflict has become is disclosed by official communiques which show that in the southern Solomons alone American pilots have destroyed more than 625 planes.

In the Aleutians, U. S. army fliers based in the Andreanof Islands have been able to bomb the Jap garrisons on Kiska and Attu without encountering air opposition.

WPB Studies Cut In Print Paper For Newspapers

WASHINGTON—(AP)— The war production board weighed today the advisability of accepting a proposed newsprint curtailment for 1943 based on each newspaper's 1941 consumption.

The reduction, offered as a guide in controlling print paper consumption, was recommended by the newspaper industry's advisory committee yesterday following notice by Canadian and American government officials to expect a sharp cut in newpaper production next year.

The governmet estimates indicated an approximate 20 per cent cut in pulpwood supplies for paper making but paper sources explained the reduction would not reach that figure in supplies.

A paper industry spokesman who preferred to remain anonymous, expressed the opinion that whatever curtailment in paper consumption is required would be closer to 10 per cent than 20.

The proposed cuts would not apply to small papers using less than 25 tons a quarter after cutting consumption back to the 1941 level.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, December 12.

MOST encouraging and propitious planetary aspects continue to dominate all departments of life, with possibly the paramount activities centered on the pursuit of pleasure. The domestic, social and affectional scene may be lively with exciting functions, probably with culminations of romance and courtship. It is a time for seeking favors or approbation from elders and superiors and at the same time being gracious enough to confer them. But a tendency to impetuosity, friction and rash acts should be restrained.

Those whose birthday it is may look to a year of much progress, prosperity, popularity and favors from those in high places. It is a time for pushing for the rewards of past performances and the cooperation to continue in new efforts. Grace and amiability rather than force will prove effective whereas impetuosity, rash acts, or strife might confuse the issue, and provoke enmity or jealousy. The young are especially favored.

A child born on this day may have excellent equipment for a successful, happy and productive life. Its diversified talents fit it for business, or artistic or social achievement of outstanding merit.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

RUFF IN THE DUMMY

Once in a blue moon the defenders will lead a suit which finds you able to ruff in either your own hand or the dummy. That is a terrific advantage usually, if you may preserve your longer string of trumps intact, while discarding a loser from your own side suits. It is only rarely that this situation is reversed But trumping promptly without first deciding which is better is always a mistake.

(Dealer: North North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	2 ♦
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	4 ♣
4 ♥	Dbl

What awful bidding, with neither North nor South showing the four card spade holdings. But there are lots of people who are afraid of four-card suits, and hence can never be fine bidders. But this would have panned out profitably if South had not fumbled the ball in the play, as West can make 5 Clubs without the slightest trouble.

After two diamond tricks, the club A and K, East led a third club, and the crisis of the deal was at hand. Down one would have been a good score for South, much better than letting his opponents have a not-vulnerable game. But he played quickly and managed to go down two. Without stopping to decide where he wanted to ruff that club, he put on the heart 2 from his own hand.

When he then led to the heart A, and West discarded, he knew definitely what the simplest thinking should have shown him was likely—that East now had more trumps than he. Even guessing the spade finesse right, he still had to lose a heart trick to East.

If South had ruffed that third club in the dummy, he could have caught all of East's trumps and would have been down only one.

Tomorrow's Problem.

How many tricks should South take on this hand at 4-Spades after West leads the diamond 3?

FIVE-FOOTER JOINS

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(U.P.)—Lieut. Gov. Louis W. Cappelli administered the oath of allegiance to the smallest man ever mustered into the Coast Guard—his son Louis, jr., two inches short of the minimum height of 5 feet, 2 inches, who was taken on waivers.

THEATERS

Musical Extravaganza.

Harry James and his Music Makers set the tempo for "Springtime in the Rockies," the musical extravaganza filmed in technicolor opening Saturday at the Ohio. Canada's Lake Louise provided the background for the picture that has a star-studded cast topped by Betty Grable, John Payne, Carmen Miranda, Cesar Romero and Charlotte Greenwood. The vivacious Miss Miranda introduces a number of new songs and also presents a novelty, "Chattanooga Choo Choo," sung in her native Portuguese.

Musical Film.

New York night spots and a U. S. army camp furnish the locale for "Seven Days' Leave," a comedy with music starring Victor Mature and Lucille Ball, opening at the Madison, Saturday. Freddy Martin and Les Brown and their bands supply the music and the entertainers include a new Latin-American star, Mapy (pronounced Moppy) Cortez, Ginny Sims and Peter Lind Hayes. Mature has the role of a musician-enlistee who sweeps a socialite off her feet in order to claim an inheritance. "Boston Blackie Goes Hollywood" is the co-feature.

Western Thriller.

The Rangebusters outwit a gang of highwaymen by posing as renegades themselves in "Arizona Stage Coach," opening today at the Ritz. Dusty King introduces several new songs including "Where the Grass Grows Green in the Mountains," while his sidekicks Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune do their share to keep up the action. "The Mystery of Marie Roget," based on the classic of Edgar Allan Poe, is the second feature. Marie Montez and Maria Ouspenskaya are in the cast.

Scattergood Story.

The sage of Coldriver bets on the trotting horses in "Scattergood Rides High," the Park attraction starring Guy Kibbee in the role of Clarence Budington Kelland's hero popularized by Kibbee for some time on the screen. But the betting is all done in the interests of helping a young friend regain his inheritance, a stable of fine horses that had passed into unappreciative hands. Charles Lind, Dorothy Moore and Jed Prouty are among the players. Tim Holt's starring picture, "The Bandit Trail," is the co-feature.

PIED PIPER KILLS RATS

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Fifth and sixth grade students of a Cleveland school have organized a club that gets results—the Pied Piper club has meant sudden death for more than 1,600 rats.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I STIRRED with quick interest at Olina's final sentence. So this was what had led to that triumphal tour of the United States!

"It was like the opening of Heaven to me," Olina went on, "that glimpse of life in America, where a girl is permitted to live as she pleases and marry a man of her own choice.

"I suppose you must have wondered how I, a princess, was able to escape from my family and finance that sojourn on Long Island," she said.

"Yes, I did at the time," I said, "but I did not dwell on it."

"An aunt of mine, a sister of my father, made that possible," she said. "She was a woman of great wealth, who had known the tragedy of an unhappy marriage forced upon her. I was her favorite, of all her nieces and nephews.

Aunt Gave Her Money.

"When Mama was planning our trip, Aunt Marie not only gave me a large sum in travelers' checks hidden in the lining of a beautiful silk handkerchief case, which was her ostensible travel gift to me, but gave me also the address of the old man and woman who came with me to The Larches.

"They had been my aunt's personal servants, and she had rewarded them with a home in America and an ample annuity.

"'They will do anything for you, Olina, anything,'" she told me.

"'God knows if I am doing the right thing,' she said, 'but you are very dear to me, and I do not want you to be compelled to marry if your heart does not dictate your choice.

"'I am not telling you what to do,' Aunt Marie said, her voice trembling. 'I am not even advising you, but I am putting it within your power financially to order your life as you choose, and my old servants will guard you with their lives.

"'I have only one promise to exact of you. If you decide on any course of action which involves them, stay with them constantly. Never, with reasonable exceptions, go anywhere by yourself. I know I can trust you, my darling.'"

Olina choked up suddenly and for several seconds we sat in silence as I stroked her bowed head.

"I never saw her again," she said. "She died before I went back to Transvania. But I kept my promise not to leave her old servants. I also obeyed her injunction never to tell my family that she or her servants had aided me. To this day Mama does not know from me how I managed. But with her shrewdness and keen perceptions, I am sure she figured it out long ago, but with her usual delicacy and her respect for my aunt's memory, she has never taxed me with it.

"Our trip was nearly over when I finally made up my mind that I could not, would not go back with my family and marry Georges, as I knew I must if I returned to Transvania.

"Please understand, though, that I had not decided I never would marry Georges. I knew that if I could make a free choice, I might decide in his favor.

"But I finally made up my mind not to go back and marry Georges or anybody else, until I had lived by myself for awhile, and had experienced some other life than the one laid out for me by the court. Then it was that I ran away."

U. S. 'CHUTISTS, TANKS OPEN NEW TUNISIA FRONT

Strike Toward Gulf of Gabes as Russians Claim More Stalingrad Gains.

its new offensive against the El Agheila line in Libya, but reported that Axis forces were becoming increasingly jumpy as they awaited the onslaught.

The Italians reported "more intense activity" on the Libyan front and said, without specifying the sector, the Axis forces supported by planes had gained new positions in the Tunisian fighting.

A delayed Associated Press dispatch from an advanced Libyan airfield said the United States Black Scorpion, Fighting Cock and Penguin fighter squadrons moved up to a new base close to the El Agheila front three days ago.

On their first day there they downed seven Messerschmitts and brought their collective toll of Axis planes to 50.

Allied bombers and fighter bombers struck anew at the Marble Arch airfield behind the El Agheila line, the Tunis airdrome, docks at the La Goulette port of Tunis, and supply shipping and warehouses at Sousse.

The Axis was using its largest planes to speed men and supplies to the North African front.

The Cairo communique said long range fighters encountered a formation of six-engined planes yesterday north of Tripolitania and shot down one and damaged another.

These presumably were the new German Blohm and Voss 222's, giant flying boats capable of carrying 80 men with a range estimated at 4,500 miles.

British Harass Foe at El Agheila

CAIRO —(INS)— Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's tactics of harassing the Germans and Italians in forward positions outside El Agheila has unnerved the Axis forces awaiting the hour when the British Eighth army again will strike, it was indicated today in a communique from Middle East headquarters.

British patrols constantly are prying into the defenses established by Nazi General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel following his heading retreat from Egypt and half way across Libya, said the communique issued by Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander.

Nazis Claim Bag of 37 Allied Tanks

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts) —(AP)— German and Italian units on the Tunisia front penetrated Allied positions and destroyed or captured 37 tanks, the German high command said today.

It said the Algerian port of Bone (an Allied supply base) was bombed last night.

Shoot Down Nazi Six-Engined Plane

CAIRO—(AP)—Allied long-range fighters shot down a giant six-engined Axis plane and damaged two others in a battle off the north coast of Tripolitania yesterday, a British communique reported today.

A four-engined enemy plane also was reported severely damaged by Allied fighters in the same area.

(The enemy planes were not identified as to make but they presumably were transports or cargo carriers being used by the Germans to ferry men and supplies to North Africa.)

Knock Out 1200 Russian Tanks, Claim

BERLIN, (From German Broadcasts) —(AP)— The high command asserted today that 1,263 Russian tanks had been knocked out of action since Dec. 1 on the eastern front and German forces were credited with successes on the central, Stalingrad and Caucasus sectors.

Report British Troops In Teheran

LONDON—(INS)—A Reuter dispatch from Teheran, Iran, reported today that British troops arrived in the city last night, moving up from bases to the south to protect British oil installations and military stores and establishments.

The troops were sent into Teheran following riots and subsequent looting on Wednesday which resulted from a bread shortage.

The situation was well in hand.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The census bureau reported today that the birth rate in October—23.8 per 1,000—was the highest recorded since February 1924.

The bureau said the provisional death rate during the first 10 months of this year was 10.3 per 1,000 compared with 10.6 for the corresponding period last year.

Nazis Keep Vichy Chief Of State Virtually a Prisoner.

LONDON (INS) Reuter's (British) news agency reported today that French chief of state Marshal Henri Philippe Petain is now virtually a prisoner, and is allowed to leave his Vichy hotel only if accompanied by a German officer. Reports in the Swiss press were cited as authority.

late the encircled garrison of drive the Japs into the sea.

Elimination of Buna will rid the whole Papua teritory of enemy forces and enable the Allies to concentrate their efforts on reducing the twin bases of Lae and Salamaua held by the Japs in northeast New Guinea.

The frustrated Jap counter-attack took the form of a dual thrust against the besieging Americans and Aussies from Buna village and Buna mission.

Artillery and machine-gun fire cut down the Japs in waves as they attempted to advance from behind strong pillbox defenses. No figures were given but large numbers were reported killed.

Cornered Japs 'Fight Like Doomed Rats'

By PAT ROBINSON

(INS Staff Correspondent)

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA—The remnants of the Japanese garrisons on the southeast New Guinea coast are doomed and they know it. They are fighting like cornered rats and must be killed one by one.

And that is exactly what the American and Australian jungle fighters are doing.

The Japanese have been forced back on a thin fringe of beach and coastal jungle around Buna, but they are strongly entrenched. Encircling the village stronghold is an almost solid line of machine gun and mortar positions, which have to be cleared out one at a time.

The enemy has been too hard pressed to bury its dead, and the stench of the decomposing bodies is almost unbearable. The ruthless, hard-boiled Japanese have donned gas masks and obviously are determined to fight to the last man.

But the Yanks and Aussies are tough, too. And they are convinced that they are the masters of the vaunted Nipponese who made a reputation as invincibles in their rapid drive through the Malayan jungles to Singapore.

"They were supposed to be world beaters, but we have their number," said Private Albert Wyne of Detroit, who came back to a field hospital today with a slight wound.

Three Jap Planes Downed In India

NEW DELHI - (INS) - At least three planes out of a Japanese squadron of bombers and fighters were shot down yesterday during an enemy raid on Chittagong, India, Allied headquarters announced today.

The communique said that the civil population of Chittagong, on the Bay of Bengal just over the border from Burma, took to shelters and remained calm.

Only a small amount of damage was done by the Jap raiders and casualties were said to have been light.

Japs Attacking In Western Yunnan

CHUNGKING (AP) Strong Japanese forces, recently reinforced from Burma, have attacked Chinese defense lines in western Yunnan, the area in which the Chinese command has been expecting a major enemy offensive, a communique reported tonight.

Passenger cars will use red stickers and trucks will get yellow stickers. The old 1942 metal tags must be kept on the car throughout 1943 as the only means of identification for officers. Only one windshield sticker will be issued for each vehicle. The paper tags will be available after March 1 at the places where license plates have been sold.

fact that Rome has not been bombed.

The Italian capital is regarded as a vitally important military objective. It serves as a main junction for railway communication with southern Italy and the supply route to North Africa via Sicily. Destruction of its railway bottleneck would, informed sources believe, seriously affect the shipment of troops and war supplies from Germany to the Axis forces in Tunisia and Libya.

However, those familiar with lay-out of Rome believe it would be almost impossible to subject the city to heavy aerial bombardment without damaging the vatican or the historic Catholic churches in the city proper.

U. S. Fights Italy With Albania Promise

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A new phase in the psychological and political warfare against Italy unfolded today with an official declaration that the United States is looking forward to the day when it can help Albania drive the Italian invaders from her borders.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in a statement applauding the efforts of Albanian guerrilla bands, said the restoration of a free Albania is inherent to the declarations of the Atlantic charter.

The Hull statement, piped by short wave radio into Albania as well as other conquered countries, is the latest step in the psychological warfare to weaken the morale of the Italian people.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill has warned them that they will be bombed into defeat unless they revolt from Mussolini's rule. Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle, jr., has appealed to Italians to throw off their Fascist yoke.

TAXIS WARNED

Told They Must Stop Long Trips In Ohio Areas.

CLEVELAND (AP) - Taxicab companies in small Ohio cities and suburbs must cease violation of Office of Defense transportation rulings immediately, C. R. Allen, manager of the Motor Transport Division in the Cleveland district, warned today.

He cited particularly cabs in Sandusky and Painesville which were guilty of carrying passengers on trips extending 10 miles beyond corporation limits and trips with overall mileage of more than 25 miles.

NAMES THREE

OPA Appoints Committee to Fix Deferment Policy.

WASHINGTON (AP) President Roosevelt today appointed a three-man committee to formulate a uniform policy of granting occupational deferments to federal government workers.

The committee will consist of Paul Bellamy, chairman, Oldway Read, and Eric Johnston.

Her Parents, Thousand Others Thrilled by Thebom Concert

her interpretation of the two Schubert numbers, "Die Junge Nonne" and "Heidenroeslein" — the latter based on Heine's familiar poem. Clearly, Miss Thebom demonstrated her musical mastery in the two Brahms lieder, "Die Mainacht" and "Botschaft." As an encore to this group, Miss Thebom sang Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich." Why she sang it in English when the group was sung in German and when she sang the German so very well is difficult to understand. But the audience liked it.

The audience liked her other encores, too. They included the Seguedilla from Bizet's Carmen, Stephen Foster's "Some Folks Say," a charming French Folk song "Tell Me To Love You," the popular musical version of the Lord's Prayer and—possibly as a tribute to her mother—the first song Miss Thebom could remember having heard: "Oh, My Heart, What Has Become of You?" a Swedish folk tune.

But it took Kashteyna's aria from Rimsky-Korsakoff's one-act opera, "Kashtey, the Sorcerer," to demonstrate the full dramatic power of the singer.

In fact, the aria proved that complete justice could not be done to Miss Thebom's voice without full orchestra accompaniment and the action and settings of the operatic stage.

"My Russian teacher heard the aria while he was traveling in the U. S. S. R.," she said. "He came back and told me about it so I sent to the New York Public Library and had a photostatic copy made of the composition. So far as we know it is the only copy being used on the American concert stage."

For the two final groups of her concert Miss Thebom sang a group of French songs by Debussy and Faure and an English group that included McDonald's "Daybreak," Bantock's "Feast of Lanters" and two musical settings by the British composer Quilter of lines from Shakespeare's plays—"Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Winds" and "O Mistress Mine."

In the opening group were Handel's "Hear Me," from Scipio, a song of Paisiello's, and Mozart's aria "Parto, Parto!" from Titus.

For a person of his pronounced youth, William Hughes played the accompaniments with unusual maturity and impeccable skill. He is to be complimented. And so is Miss Thebom for the graciousness with which she introduced him to the audience and let him share the applause.

On the whole, these two musicians ably demonstrated that there is a bright future for music in America as performed by Americans.

Next concert in the Civic Music series will be the appearance of Claudio Aurru, pianist, Feb. 18.

some of its food luxuries and concentrate on essentials. An educational campaign will start soon.

At his first press conference as food administrator, Wickard said the prospects were good that American civilians, American armed forces and the Allies would have enough food to meet needs—"I emphasize needs as against what people might like. . . . I'm not saying that you may not go hungry for some of the things you would like."

Along with the assurance that no one need be hungry came a denial of a report that the government plans to limit movement of food to 500 miles or eliminate larger stores to concentrate sales in smaller establishments. But agriculture and office of defense transportation officials recognize transportation as a major food bottleneck.

President Roosevelt delegated Wickard the power to establish priorities on the transportation of foods, and officials here expect an attempt soon to eliminate so far as possible long hauls of non-essential and luxury foods.

Much transportation now is wasted. Officials said, for example, that beef is shipped from Nebraska to Chicago, while Omaha packers send theirs to Illinois; Buffalo millers send flour to the midwest and vice versa.

Severest blow to many American housewives—long accustomed to kitchenettes and can openers—will be the cuts in canned foods. Officials doubted the disappearance of the tin can, but Americans were expected to have to cut consumption of canned foods from 16 to 33 pounds each in 1943. Some quarters expected the cuts in canned food production to be followed by rationing.

Officials indicate that no total weekly meat ration yet has been set. Originally it had been hoped to fix it at about 2½ pounds weekly. Increased demands by the armed forces and lend-lease may make the eventual ration considerably smaller. The weekly meat ration in Great Britain and Germany is about 12½ ounces.

FAVOR WALKER

Dems Expected to Replace Flynn as Party Chairman.

WASHINGTON—(AP)— Reports circulated on Capitol Hill today that Postmaster General Frank C. Walker is the Roosevelt administration's choice to succeed Edward J. Flynn of New York as national chairman of the Democratic party.

Flynn has indicated he will step down from the party leadership early in January. Those in a position to know said the election of Walker to the Democratic leadership would be acceptable to President Roosevelt and most of his advisors and might prevent a threatened cleavage in the party.

While it was indicated that the choice of Walker would be greeted with little enthusiasm on the part of members of congress who have not always agreed with Mr. Roosevelt's political views, it was not believed likely that any open protest would be made.

LIQUOR'S GOING TO BE RATIONED IN OHIO SOON

So, Mr. Drinker, Make Room For Another Card In Your Wallet.

"At present it is first come, first served, in butcher shops throughout the nation," they said. "There is really nothing akin to a fair distribution system for meat."

It was hinted that, with Food Administrator Wickard's appointment of a director of food distribution, nation-wide rationing of meat could be expected within two or three weeks.

Meanwhile, the Office of Price Administration moved to relieve meat shortages in defense areas by setting up unified ceiling prices on all wholesale beef.

Prices per hundred pounds set for Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and western New York are: $22 for grade "A" meat, $20 for grade "B" and $18 for grade "C."

These prices become effective immediately for sales of beef to war procurement agencies, and on Dec. 16 for civilian sales.

Price ceilings in other parts of the country range from $15.75 to $23.75 per hundred pounds.

The "run on rum" which has been going on in liquor stores throughout the state for the past month and more has forced Director Taylor to consider the rationing plan.

The United Press quotes Taylor as saying in Columbus: "If we can stop the run on warehouses for a few days, we may allow whisky that is coming in the state to accumulate. We may be able to give the permit holders a case at a time. As it is now, many of them are unable to get anything, even after they have stood in line for hours at a time."

How much whisky will be alloted to retail buyers, who purchase their supply from state operated stores has not been determined, but Taylor said it would be "considerably less" than the one quart per day limit now in effect.

Permit holders will be rationed by card on the basis of what they purchased over a period of time, probably a six-month period during the preceding year. They will be required to take proportionate reductions from the amount of whisky they bought in that specified period.

Taylor said he would ask for legal advice from the attorney general's office in setting up the state-wide rationing, but declared he did not believe a formal ruling was necessary on its legality.

Leaves For New Job — Miss Clara Louise Smith, x-ray technician at General Hospital, has accepted a position as head technician at the Berea Hospital and will leave for her new location after concluding her work here today. Miss Smith, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. A. Smith, 138 South Diamond street, is the only student to have been trained in x-ray work at General Hospital and recognized by the national organization. She attended Ohio State University before starting her technical training.

Shelby Man Arrested—Harold Littleton, 25, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman yesterday on a warrant from Shelby charging him with non-support. He was taken into custody while working in Monroe township with a pipe line construction crew.

Sale Authorized—Sale of real estate of the Pleasant Hill United Brethren church, Bellville R. D. 1, to the Bellville board of education was authorized today in papers filed in common pleas court. The purchase price was listed as $175, which, the action stipulated, is to be used for church purposes and expenses.

Meetings Set — Organization meetings to plan for carrying out the government's voluntary meat rationing program were scheduled in two villages today, while literature regarding the program will be distributed in Plymouth by Boy Scouts. Attorney James Eberly, civilian defense director, will be in charge of a meeting at the Lucas school at 7:30 p. m. Monday and Mrs. Edith Metcalf, his assistant, will be in charge of a similar session at the Butler school at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday.

new task develops — supplying medicines, food and clothing to the peoples who had been "plundered, despoiled and starved."

"The Nazis and Japanese," he said, "have butchered innocent men and women in a campaign of organized terror. They have stripped the lands they hold of food and other resources. They have used hunger as an instrument of the slavery they seek to impose."

Allied policy is the "direct opposite," he continued, adding "United Nations will bring food for the starving and medicine for the sick. Every aid possible will be given to restore each of the liberated countries to soundness and strength, so that each may make its full contribution to United Nations victory, and to the peace which follows."

Total value of lend lease goods transferred and services rendered since the beginning of the program on March 11, 1941, to November 30, 1942, was placed at $7,496,000,000 in the report. This compared with $5,129,000,000 reported in the sixth report three months ago.

Receives Father's Navy Medal

Declaring that Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan "was a good friend of mine," President Roosevelt, above, presents the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously to the officer who was killed during the great night battle in the Solomons. The medal was received by Admiral Callaghan's son, Lieut. Judson Callaghan, right, also a navy officer at the White House.

WOMEN SPEED 1-MAN WAR JOB

Exacting Work on Telescopic Sight Broken Down Into Number of Tasks.

(By Associated Press)

MINNEAPOLIS—Officers at a government arsenal didn't think it could be done. Building that particular telescopic sight had always been a one-man job.

When engineers of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company got through with it, that one-man job had been broken down into a dozen jobs and sights were rolling off an assembly line like cars out of a factory—only faster.

"However," remarked I. K. Foster, general superintendent, "I don't think we could have done it without women."

Therein lies a principal answer to the production success of one of the nation's largest precision war plants. Before the war, it was the largest producer of heating instruments.

More than half of Minneapolis-Honeywell's employes are women.

Nimble fingers and patience are two great advantages women possess over men, Foster has learned.

"That's why we could apply a production-line technique to the assembly of those sights," he related. "It is painstaking work, requiring a light, quick touch and lots of patience just like embroidery, and women have those qualities to a remarkable degree."

Minneapolis-Honeywell started using women in its plant in 1923, so it had a wealth of experience to draw upon when the war began draining off many of its male workers.

Robert Biron, director of industrial relations, and Henry Fletcher, personnel director, size up women war workers in their plants this way:

On assembly lines, women are superior to men. The assembly work involves small, light parts requiring no particular strength in handling, but demanding dexterity, patience and, possible more important than anything else, the capacity to follow orders.

"Show a woman how to perform a particular task and she will do it exactly that way for hour after hour," says Biron. "Put a man on it and he may start experimenting, seeking a better way. Then, too, he lacks the patience required in repetitious tasks and he gets bored. His desire to experiment grows out of his hankering for tinkering and the inability to do that makes him bored."

Fletcher thinks women learn more quickly, too, and that their behavior is likely to be better, providing men and women work apart. He is against mixed groups.

LEGAL NOTICE

Ross Hazlett and Mary C. Hazlett, whose residence is unknown, will take notice that The Mansfield Lumber Company has filed its answer and cross-petition in the case of Ross Hazlett and Mary C. Hazlett vs. The Mansfield Wrecking & Materials Company, et al, in the Common Pleas Court of Richland County, Ohio, alleging that there is due it from plaintiffs for materials furnished, upon an account $478.64 with interest at 6% from October 26, 1940, and that said account is secured by mechanic's lien upon the following described real estate: Being lots numbered 1, 2 and 3 in Broadview Park Allotment, Madison Township, Richland County, Ohio. Said cross-petition prays for judgment against plaintiffs in said sum; that its lien be adjudged according to its priority; be foreclosed; and that the real estate be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said lien.

Said plaintiffs are required to answer on or before the 30th day of January, 1943, or judgment may be taken against them.

A War Correspondent at Work

This war correspondent worked far into the night and under adverse conditions to cover the story of the landing and operations of an American Army Engineers task force in Libya. Lacking the comforts of a desk, electricity and other conveniences of a modern newspaper office, he rigged up a miner's lamp to illuminate his typewriter. The net protects his head from insects.

SEE TROUBLE FOR DAIRYMEN

Extension Experts Predict Labor Shortage Will Hit Food Production.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Ohio farmers will have more trouble meeting demands for dairy products than with any other phase of food production in 1943, in the opinion of members of the extension service at Ohio State university, who have talked with farm owners in all sections of the state.

Unless some other crop or livestock enterprise is abandoned, work connected with keeping a dairy herd in addition to the milk twice daily, adds up to more hours a day than most farmers can spare from their own and family labor. Hiring labor for dairy farms in 1942 was bad, and the labor problem in 1943 is likely to be worse.

Prices received by farmers for their products will not permit them to compete with industry for labor. The average weekly wage without board for farm help in July was $14 but the factory workers average weekly wage at the same time was $36.

Extension men at the university and in Ohio counties report many sales of dairy cows; some went to other farms where the labor situation was better, but a lot of dairy cows already have been sold for beef.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1942.

Better mail it soon, or there'll be no need for a "Do not open until Christmas" sticker on the package.

It is now being recalled that the hardy pioneers crossed the continent without ANY gasoline in their covered wagons.

One astrologer predicts that the collapse of Mussolini will come December 26—possibly because of disappointment over the non-arrival of Santa Claus.

Cities Oppose Labor Board Action

MORE THAN the reasonable requirements of war emergency appear to be involved in efforts of the War Labor Board to assume control of municipal labor relations, as between city governments and their employes, and to dictate policies of organized labor control over retail businesses which endeavor to co-operate, but are not directly engaged in production or distribution of war materials.

While state, city and individual "rights" may properly be suspended to any necessary extent in promoting the national war effort, it does appear that necessity rather than whim should be the directing factor in all such actions and that encroachment of the federal government into disputes between cities and their employes, unless vital war services are involved, would be a long step toward further centralization of government in Washington—which appears to be more of a New Deal aspiration than a wartime expedient.

The Montgomery Ward case is another in which public interest extends far beyond the matter in controversy—that of enforced "union security" under a CIO contract, and the element of compulsion which the War Labor Board seeks to introduce into this proceeding could, if successfully carried into the postwar period, as has been the apparent intent of New Deal adherents, wipe out all semblance of private business operation in the United States.

Whether this is to be changed from "a land of opportunity"—with encouragement of individual initiative—into a land of "opportunism" is at least a matter to which much serious thought should be given, rather than that unsuspecting people should be hurried into such a transition under the guise of war emergency used as a cloak for New Deal theories.

Air Transport Growing Fast

ONE of the most fantastic stories of the war has not been told and will not be told until the guns are still. That is the story of air transport. Much of the fighting now taking place in far-away corners of the globe, in steaming jungles and on minute islands, primarily is to determine who shall control the strategic air routes of the future. Fortunately for this country, the commercial airlines had progressed far ahead of any other nation, and with the arrival of hostilities were in a position to render valuable service.

It is largely airline pilots who, in close co-operation with the air transport command of the army under the leadership of Major Harold Lee George, are blazing trails over the seven seas and all the continents.

These pilots and the managements back of them who built the airlines, can rest assured that the dangers and tribulations they suffered in pioneering air operations were not in vain. As the U. S. News observes: "The number of planes leaving each day for Alaska, for England, for South America, for Africa, for India, for China and for Australia is a military secret. But it is no secret that the schedule calls for hundreds of flights every day, and that the number is growing swiftly. It is no secret that the fleet of hundreds of cargo planes in service this year is expected to grow into thousands by the end of another year."

Stout-Hearted Norway Trusts U. S.

NORWAY, which is as valiant in its downfall as any nation ever was in victory, is speaking noble words to Americans through Dr. Carl J. Hambro, former president of the Norwegian parliament. Addressing an audience of American business men, he tells of the role our own nation must play in this world crisis. He trusts his country's destiny with America.

"We who speak for the small nations," he says, "realize that the eight points of the Atlantic Charter cannot be based on fictitious ideas, as was the League of Nations. We know that the large powers with great populations must have greater authority than the small nations, and not an equal vote.

"Small nations will have to give up some of the old ideas of national sovereignty—ideas that hardly exist in the world today. We want any future world order to be based on fact, not fiction, and we of the small nations are ready to make the necessary sacrifices.

"The great pre-occupation of the Norwegian people today is that there be no appeasement. The only thing they fear is a premature peace before the enemy is thoroughly defeated."

That courageous little nation of 3,000,000 free men in bondage is "taking it" today as only those can who have stout hearts and live without fear. There'll always be a Norway, and Norway shall be free. That is one of the things America is fighting for.

Getting More Miles Per Gallon

WITH rationing of gasoline, automobile mileage per gallon becomes an important matter. Apparently great improvement is possible.

In a recent contest in Detroit, the winner is credited with the astonishing record of 88.3 miles per gallon. His 1937 car, which weighs 3,375 pounds, is reported to have traveled a fraction over 54 miles on less than two-thirds of a gallon of gas, a rate of 88.3 miles per gallon. Several other cars made records far better than is usually considered possible. All were driven slowly. Otherwise the most important factor was probably the condition of the cars and tires.

Experts emphasize the importance of clean spark plugs, air-cleaners and carburetor jets, proper pressure in fuel pumps, properly adjusted brakes and wheels, absence of leakage, and so on. Proper tire pressure is also important.

Perhaps the sharpest crack in the war is Churchill's remark that the German troops in Russia "have the consolation of knowing that they have been commanded and led not by the German general staff, but by Corporal Hitler himself."

A Rome newspaper propounds the question, "Has the Axis lost the war?"—and the answer is, "Not yet, but probably soon."

The trouble about studying geography nowadays is that it's so erratic.

As Sherman said—but war is even more so now.

GOOD-BYE FOREVER—IT MAY BE HOPED

Hawaii Feared Japanese Invasion

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Now that the whole story of Pearl Harbor has been told by the government, several interesting features may be discussed which up until that official report were taboo.

There was very real fear of invasion of the Hawaiian Islands by the Japanese for months after Pearl Harbor. One of the clearest signs of this was that all U. S. currency in the islands was plainly stamped with the word "Hawaii." The idea behind this was that if the Japanese succeeded in capturing the islands they would not be able to use the American currency so confiscated in any neutral country.

There were two schools of thought about this much feared invasion of the islands. One was that it would be accomplished by a huge naval and expeditionary force, the way having been opened by the wiping out of so much U. S. naval and air strength. The second was that a very small sneak landing party could accomplish the trick with the cooperation of the Japanese living on the islands.

This last was probably much the more dangerous, because considerably more than a majority of all the people on the islands are Japanese. In fact the Japanese born on the islands have for some years had a clear majority over all other elements of the electorate.

But it was the armada type of invasion which our military experts feared. This fear caused the rigid censorship to conceal the extent of our losses.

ACTUALLY, in the opinion of non-official observers, the Japanese DID know almost precisely the extent of the damage they had inflicted on the U. S. fleet and air power. Looking back at the Japanese claims, one glaring error stands out. They claimed to have sunk an airplane carrier. In fact they named her!

Everybody interested in Washing, or in navy circles everywhere for that matter, has known since within a week after Pearl Harbor just why the Japanese made this mistake. But the information could not be printed, good story as it was, because most of us then believed the Japs did not know how much harm they had done, and further because if the Japs had been SURE this carrier had escaped they might have pursued and destroyed her.

THE FACT is that the carrier in question HAD been moored to a buoy in Pearl Harbor up to within 48 hours of the raid! The ship that was moored to that same buoy at the time of the raid was the old battleship Utah, long used as a target. The Japs DID sink the Utah!

In short their espionage was excellent, but it was 48 hours old!

The very fact that they made this mistake about the carrier and the Utah shows how excellent their information was, not only in advance of the attack, but as to the effectiveness of the attack!

So it seems obvious to most observers that the Japs also knew how quickly we rushed planes to the islands to replace those destroyed, and that they preferred to proceed with their plans in Malaya and the Philippines to exposing their fleet to land based aviation. Especially as by mopping up Guam they had made it impossible to reinforce the Philippines with fighter planes.

Listen World!

Out for Keeps!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DON'T KNOW whether this war is going to last for one more year or five. Or what the world will be like after it's through. But I'll wager any odds on one consequence which is already going fine and dandy. Namely:

THE CLINGING VINE'S DAY IS OVER. SHE'S OUT . . . NOT ONLY FOR THE DURATION BUT FOR KEEPS.

Theoretically, there's no such thing as a helpless American female. Once upon a time someone started the theory that we Yankee femmes are a breed of Amazons. And the flattering fantasy has stuck ever since. Particularly since we achieved suffrage. But it isn't so. And it's less so than it was 50 years ago.

Far from turning Mary Jane in to a two fisted husky human, suffrage has given her 9,857 opportunities to escape any practical training or useful service. She always felt that she was man's superior. Now she has federal approval of the fact that she's his equal. The result has been little short of murder. She has all feminine privileges and all the ancient masculine prerogatives. So why should she take sass from any mere male or dust his smoking stand or mend his socks? The answer is, she doesn't.

I am a woman and, as such, naturally partial to my kind. But I do think there's more useless junk lying around in petticoats than was ever gathered in a scrap pile.

They do not look useless, these glamorous Sugars. Nowadays they are mostly attired in the cutest tuck uniforms you ever saw. And they are as busy as a pup with his first flea. They race hither and yon, saving their country . . . binding up wounds . . . promoting benefits . . . hearing committees. And, once upon a time, the sappy male would have taken them seriously. He would have broken out in a rash of chivalry at the very notion that such frail flowers were protecting him.

But, slowly but surely, he's getting hep to the racket. And turning sour on it. For he's doing a little real protecting himself. And he knows how it feels. And when it's real—or phoney.

The young men of America are facing a tough test in this war. But they are getting one honest break. They are getting a chance to see how Real Women work and feel and take it on the chin.

Those heroic nurses at Bataan they have changed America more than all the suffrage laws that ever were passed. They established, at last, a real standard of equality, not merely a legislative ballyhoo. They didn't simply vote with men. They stood by men through weeks of hell, through a nightmare that ended with death. They shared with men every agony, every horror, every drudgery and despair.

That is the only true equality between men and women. That is the equality which men will remember when they come back again to America.

Men will no longer be impressed by the Clinging Vines. They will no longer be impressed because the Little Woman has endured the duration, playing cards or serving sandwiches or flirting with a second lieutenant. They may not even be impressed because she has born a babe, with elaborate and expensive medical attendance.

They will think of the worn young nurses they knew in the corridors of Corregidor, in the jungles of Bataan, in the mobile hospitals of Africa. They will remember the women who rose before dawn, after a few hours' sleep white-faced women who moved quietly through the stink and the horror and agony of transient wards. And they will not be greatly impressed by the chiffon negligees and chiffon sobs of those who have waited in perfumed safety in America.

This is not written in prejudice. I am thinking of the noble mothers who have sent their husbands and all their sons to war, without whimpering. I am thinking of the young brides who have kissed their husbands for the last time, without outcry. I am thinking of all these with pity and reverence. But I am also thinking with contempt of those who use their womanhood to drain and cheat men's strength and trust today . . . to those who make love a cruel racket. There are many such. They are as vicious as any saboteurs . . . and deserve the same fate.

Timely Editorial

Advertisers Look Ahead.

What looks like the paradox of advertising products that cannot be purchased is probably the highest tribute ever paid to the power of advertising.

This growing practice is neither paradoxical nor inconsistent. In the first place, it secures the value of trade names at a time when dwindling internal trade jeopardizes them through loss of public contact. But something vitally important has been added to the technique of institutional advertising.

Most of this advertising copy now bears an appeal for public cooperation in the national interest.

The government owes much to this farsighted use of advertising for national purposes. It sometimes has been said that the economy of the United States was built on advertising, and it now can be said that advertising is doing its part in saving that economy for future usefulness.—Canton Repository.

Interpreting the War News

Tactics In Pacific Explained By Prime Minister of Australia

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

LIGHT was thrown on the global war strategy of the United Nations by Prime Minister John Curtin in a speech to the Australian parliament.

Curtin, in a position to know, gave the first official statement on United Nations' plans for prosecuting the war in two hemispheres at once. He said that Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt had decided even before the fall of Singapore that Germany had to be defeated before Japan.

Australia, he added, therefore is in a holding position and must (with its American allies) hold the Japanese off until the maximum Allied strength can be concentrated.

That explains much about the course of the war in the South Pacific. Its indeterminate progress has puzzled many followers of the war news.

THE REASON the Allies have not made any marked progress in regaining territory is that they have not launched a general offensive. Actions on New Guinea and the Guadalcanal area are partly defensive and basically preparatory for the offensive to come.

In these tactics the Allies have been eminently successful. The Japanese forward march has been halted for many months now, and their fleet and merchant shipping has been mauled.

They may come on again and most probably will, but they definitely do not have the striking power they had when they swept everything before them in the early days of the war. Meanwhile, Allied strength has grown.

The Japanese are in a poor position on Guadalcanal, which they wanted so desperately as a base from which to strike at the Allied supply line to Australia.

All their attempt to land reinforcements and supplies for their forces on the island have been repulsed with heavy losses for more than a month. Their troops must be badly in need of supplies and Washington opinion is that they will make another desperate attempt to break through. The American defenders are ready for them.

On New Guinea the Japanese likewise are hard-pressed. It seems like a small action in comparison with the operations in Russia and North Africa, but there is desperate fighting and the goal is important.

If the Japanese are driven off New Guinea, the next Allied move would be towards New Britain, where they have one of their most important bases, Rabaul. Its capture would mean the Allied flanking of the Solomons from the north.

The Allies are making slow but seemingly sure progress on New Guinea. They have pinned the Japanese into a narrow 15-mile coastal area. Having cleaned out Gona, they are pressing hard on the remaining enemy forces around Buna.

When Buna is taken, the Japanese hold on southeastern New Guinea will have been broken. Since they have not been able to get in reinforcements so far, there is reason to believe they might not attempt to come back.

Excellent Co-Operative Spirit Among Allied Forces In Libya

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN LIBYA—Over at El Agheila, where the Mediterranean cuts deeply into the coast of Cirenaica to form the great Gulf of Sirte, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces are nervously expecting another attack by the Allied army which already has driven them in flight across 700 miles of desert.

The Axis troops are dug in on a strong line which they prepared many months ago. That line is calculated to withstand great pressure, but nothing is more certain than that Rommel's eyes are continually searching the skies anxiously. There lies one of his greatest worries, for it was the Anglo-American air forces which played a major part in smashing his defense at El Alamein and precipitating his historic debacle.

Thus the leadership of the Briton who commands the Allied air forces is, to put it mildly, a matter of lively concern to all Americans.

It was therefore, with keen interest that I responded to the cheery greeting of welcome and shook hands with Air Vice Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham, generalissimo of the desert skies in these parts.

THE MARSHAL was drinking coffee at a little table set on the sand in front of his caravan under the powerful sun.

Coningham is a big fellow, about six feet two, but he has the figure of an athlete at the comfortable age of 47. He is good looking, too, with an attractive laugh.

The marshal talked freely about the military position as though he were at a staff conference. As a matter of fact, I find invariably that it is the big men who talk readily to reputable journalists.

I asked how our Yankees were doing on this front.

"Magnificently," he exclaimed. "Their work has been quite splendid. That cannot be over-emphasized."

"How about co-operation between the two forces?" I inquired. "Is there any clash?"

"There are no differences whatever," he declared. "We are working as a unit and self interest doesn't enter the picture at all. We have a job to do and we are doing it."

The air commander paused and grinned, then continued:

"General Strickland (Brig. Gen. Auby C. Strickland, chief of the U. S. fighter command in the Middle East) toddles over to my caravan with a can of pineapple juice. I put a little spot of gin in it. That's the sort of co-operation that exists."

I came away with the definite impression that Coningham expects hard fighting, but is absolutely certain of Allied victory.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—When the news leaked out that Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes was being considered for the job of secretary of labor and manpower czar of World War II, a lot of people were surprised, but few in official Washington.

No New Deal supporter, cabinet member, or Johnny-come-lately on the wartime stage has so increased his stature in the last year as "Honest Hal."

Before Pearl Harbor, Ickes was variously and contemptuously referred to as "The Big Ick"; or "the Administration's hatchet man" (because he apparently was always handed the dirty job of verbally slaying opponents); or "Harold the Meddler."

Even during the last year, he has been called "the government's No. 1 parasite" (following the president's suggestion that all non-essential Washingtonians were "parasites" and should move out of the Capital); and "the Big Bad Egg Man" (because he occasionally brought eggs to market in his government-owned car from his Headwaters Farm, at Olney, Md.)

NEVERTHELESS, Secretary Ickes has performed some feats since we entered the war that have confounded critics. As secretary of interior (and hence custodian of natural resources) he has been right as a rabbit on production of aluminum; the distribution of petroleum and gasoline; the shortage of electrical power; coal production; and other vital items.

He has locked horns with congress, labor, the coal interests, the petroleum czars, WPB, the power people and several other groups since war started and every time has come out on top of the heap.

In discussing Ickes for secretary of labor and manpower czar, Washington observers seemed divided into two schools of thought:

(1) That his blunt, uncompromising nature fitted him particularly for one of the toughest jobs of the war; that his honesty, loyalty to "the Chief," fearlessness in the face of personal attacks, and spitfire tactics already have earmarked him as "most-likely-to-succeed."

(2) That Ickes was merely asked to stick his neck out once more for the honor of the New Deal team.

IN REGARD to the latter, it is certain that no man in the administration set-up has played trial balloon so often as Ickes. Every time there was a tough assignment on hand, the verbal block-buster was called in. Invariably, he hurled his elephant hide into the thick of things and trumpeted his loudest. More often than not, with no glory whatever to himself.

This No. 2 school thinks that the president, yielding to pressure to shake up his war cabinet and at the same time do something about the manpower situation, merely looked to Ickes to stop the gap of criticism.

Time will tell. But one thing is certain: If the home front is going to do its part in this war, somebody is going to have to pin manpower to the mat and make it shout "Uncle Sam."

A Farmer's Diary

Woodcutters' Fire

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE WOODS along the slope was dark, the moon was late and the sky was overcast. Several acres of saplings that perished in the forest fire—or might as well have died because they cling to life by only a thread of bark—stood dark and gaunt beneath the leaden sky.

The girl, the older boys and I, when chores were done and supper over, climbed the tangled hill to the thickest stand of trees, and built a fire. Each of us gathered small brash twigs and dry leaves, white with frost, to add to the flickering flames. As a more intense heat became established, we piled on coarser, more seasoned wood, until the flame leaped high.

Here, during the day, I had set the stage by cutting down some trees. Now, by the fire's light, we trimmed the branches and threw them on the burning heap. Each child tried his or her hand at the farther end of the new crosscut saw. Against the light of our fire, we saw the sawdust spray from either side of the log, with every stroke. With each block cut from the fallen tree, our wood pile grew larger, and our interest increased. The fresh-cut white oak sticks were moist and cool and fragrant as only new lumber can be.

Resting, we marveled at the tall pillar of blue smoke that rose perpendicularly above the tallest trees. When the fire had burned down to a bed of coals, and we were weary, we sat in silence for a little time about the blue rising heat. One little boy motioned silently to where a pair of eyes gleamed from the dark like miniature headlights. But when we looked, they eased toward a low knoll, and went away. Down in the dusky valley, even at this late season, a killdeer winged across the swamp and loudly screamed his presence. From across the creek, high upon the lofty elms, came the low, heavy, hesitating cry of a big night owl. The lonely woods, the dying fire, the tang of frost and the fragrance of blue smoke—the healthy tiredness of woodcutters who have been to the pleasant border of adventure and excitement—and yet, at the foot of our hill, just a few hundred feet away, the warmth and light of our home cottage!

"Let's do it often, daddy," they said. "Let's each have a sandwich before we go to bed." So we did.

DINA CASHMAN + + +

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER VII

Her last fears disappeared; after all, she was nineteen and he was twenty-four; why shouldn't they be married? His family might not like it, but that had happened before. Families did not count. They loved each other, that was all that mattered!

And presently the winter sun burst out brilliantly, shining gloriously on the snow, and laden clouds, spectacularly purple in the bright light, were massing on the southern mountains.

Nothing in Vere's manner in the slightest degree suggested that anything today was different from yesterday, and Dina quickly adapted her manner to his and entered into the business of the morning as wholeheartedly as he did.

She immediately had her reward. He never left her side; there might have been no one else on the broad white hillside but themselves.

Vere's hand catching hers when she slipped in the snow; Vere steadying her body against his own, a big arm gripped tightly about her; Vere murmuring encouragements to her and laughing under his breath as she floundered and stumbled.

Both of them becoming gloriously warm and breathless and ravenously hungry, so that the brightly lighted breakfast room of the hotel was heaven to reach at half-past nine, and the relays of hot coffee and bacon, waffles and fruit could not come fast enough or often enough.

The big place was filled with feasting holidaymakers; everyone was in great spirits, and when snow began to filter down softly across the windows, and all the outdoor world grew dim and mystical, Dina felt that she had been transplanted to a land unknown, where nothing of the dark sordid past could follow her.

She knew she was lovely in borrowed costume, and she knew Vere was proud of her. When they all scrambled out again after breakfast for a few more hours of excitement he stayed with her, hardly spoke to anyone else, and because of his complete absorption drew about himself and Dina all the other members of their own group, curious to see something of the girl who had so completely bewitched him.

They tobogganed down a long white hill with the powdered sugar flying down from the skies and up from the earth about them.

Dina and Vere skated, first brushing off the snow with brooms from a small section of the mountain lake—Dina not so much at a disadvantage here, for her very small girlhood had been spent in Arkansas, and she was entirely at home on the ice.

Her easy prowess made Vere prouder than ever, and for a happy hour they circled about to the steady pounding of classical old waltzes from a loudspeaker hidden in the pines.

Then, alarmingly, it was two o'clock and lunch time, and immediately after lunch bags had to be packed and the cars started down the long road through the snow.

"We've got to get out of the snow belt before dark," Vere reminded her. Dina did not care if they were caught in the snow, anything just to be with him, just to hear his voice.

And this long drive home was perhaps the happiest time of all. She rested against his shoulder, and sometimes he drove with his left hand and put his right arm about her.

Big fur rugs were piled over her; she was snug and warm under them, and she might have fallen asleep but for the joy of being close to him—a joy that would end, for a while anyway, when he put her down at her father's door that night.

"It's so little to say that it's the happiest time I've ever had, Vere!"

His voice was very low.

"In spite of the fact that I love you too much, Dina?"

She pressed even closer against his arm.

"I didn't mean to," he said, "but you were so darned sweet! The sweetest—well, anyway, you forgive me and you love me! It's not as if we were kids. We've both liked other people, had crushes. But this is the real thing."

"Oh, this is the real thing!" she said fervently.

They talked tirelessly of their love. Of what he felt when first he had seen her, of what it meant for them to be together now, of how little the world outside mattered.

He had told her that he had been lonely all his life. He was always laughing, sure, and he made a lot of racket, sure; but he really never had had either a father or a mother. His mother was always at Palm Springs or in New York or in Europe. His father he hardly knew. He had an uncle, Rogers Holland, who was rich and kind of a nice old fellow, but he did not see him very often.

"He sends me a couple of hundred now and then," Vere said carelessly.

"A couple of hundred!"

"Well, his wife died and he had no kids. Cold, darling?"

"No. Terribly comfortable." The man glanced down sideways and saw her looking up, bright-eyed out of her nest of furs and leaned down to kiss her temple.

They had a late dinner at the Palace hotel; there was no one else in the dining room. They could talk, leaning on the table, and Dina could look deep into his eyes, with the new light of love welling in her own, and lay her hand over his and tell him that so long as he loved her she did not regret anything, she was not sorry for anything.

And then it was half-past ten and tired and cramped and cold, she was getting out of the car at Railway Flats and lifting her face for a last kiss.

Then blankness.

Blankness. For though she saw him again she knew, as women have known from the beginning of time, that she had lost him. The fear came first with a chilling, sickening little tremble of her spine, an ache between her eyes.

It grew; it strengthened. It was always with her. She had lost more than youth, she had lost more than girlhood, up there in the little cabin in Paradise Valley. She had lost peace.

More than once Vere came to the grocery and they talked, Dina fingering his coat lapel, raising her heavy lashes from heavy eyes to smile at him. But now there was so little to say!

They could not have another Saturday night in the Sierras because looky, he told her, Molly McGuire and Pen Stafford were being married on Saturday night and he had to "ush."

And then, darn it, he had to go down to his mother at Palm Springs for Christmas and the New Year's game in the Rose Bowl, and after that he was going east. Remember he had told her that he was going to take a post-graduate there?

"But don't you care, darling," he said; "We'll write each other like anything! And before you know it I'll be back and get mother to ask you to Tahoe. Because"—the smooth firm cheek had been against hers as he spoke, and she had caught the clean odors of shaving soap, lotion, and the perfume of this thick blond hair—"because there'll never be anyone but you!"

Sport Podge

Donna Schuster, captain of the Mansfield Provident Loan girls softball team, and one of the city's outstanding women bowlers, leaves Monday night for Daytona Beach, Florida, and the new camp of the WAACs.

She'll be the second member of the Providents to join the service. Her teammates will have a hard time replacing her in either sport.

At 24 (it's all right to reveal women's ages up to 30, so I'm told) Donna has been playing softball in organized competition for 12 years, and has long been recognized as the best girl third sacker in Ohio.

Going to Florida's sunny clime, Donna won't be worried by the uniform shortage which Provident Second Sacker Jean Herrick found at cold Des Moines, Iowa.

Jean, so I hear, just got her uniform overcoat this week. For the past month she's been wearing a regular army coat, a heavy load for a little gal.

Donna's orders read: "If you're athletically inclined, bring your paraphernalia with you." So she'll be taking her softball uniform and golf sticks along.

Not much has been said about it, but the participation of Mansfield bowlers in the Red Cross event of the Victory Legion bowling campaign this week promises to better the record of local keglers in the first event for the USO.

League contributions to the Red Cross have been on a par with those of the USO, and a real effort is being made to line up entries for the mixed doubles tournament which concludes the event over the week-end.

Private Dick Schwab, the old News-Journal B-league golfer, reports from Seymour-Johnson Field, Goldsboro, N. C., that he recently got a letter from Westinghouse golfer Carl Kurek on Guadalcanal.

"Carl," says Dick, "states that he hasn't much time for playing golf where he is now. And whenever I get the idea that this Seymour-Johnson Field is lousy, I just think of Carl and the place where he is, and this seems like heaven."

Dick says there is plenty of golf, and golf balls, down in North Carolina "for the officers, not me."

Dick is in high good spirits however, because of a recent military maneuver which he reports succinctly:

Sighted schooner—drank same.

3 Stars Repeat on AP Eleven

Sinkwich, Schreiner and Wildung Chosen.

By HERB BARKER

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK -- Reflecting the tremendous concentration of football strength in the Big Ten and Southeastern conferences, the 18th annual All-America team, chosen today by The Associated Press, allots six places to those two powerful leagues, awards two to the east, and one each to the Missouri Valley, Southern and Pacific Coast conferences.

On the All-America squad of 33 players, named after a nation-wide survey of expert opinion, nearly two-thirds are drawn from the middle west and the south. The actual break-down shows 11 from the south, 10 from the mid-west, five from the far west, four from the east and three from the southwest.

This year's All-America offers three "repeaters" from the 1941 team in the persons of Frank Sinkwich, sensational backfield ace of the Georgia Bulldogs, Southeastern champion and Rose Bowl nominee; Dave Schreiner, crack Wisconsin end, and Dick Wildung, Minnesota's great tackle.

Rounding out the All-America backfield with Sinkwich are Glenn Dobbs, quarterback of Tulsa's Missouri Valley champions and Sugar Bowl nominees; Paul Governali, demon-passer of Columbia university and Mike Holovak, powerful Boston college back.

Schreiner's running mate at end is Bob Shaw of Ohio State's Big Ten champions, while Clyde Johnson, Kentucky's six-foot, six-inch line star, shares the tackle posts with Wildung.

Named to the guard positions are Garrard Ramsey of William and Mary, Southern conference title-holder, and Chuck Taylor of Stanford's Indians. The center is Joe Domnanovich, captain of Alabama's Crimson Tide.

The line, anchored by the huge Johnson's 235 pounds, is one of the heaviest ever chosen for the All-America, averaging 204 pounds. The backfield hits a 190-pound average.

Tulsa, William and Mary, Kentucky and Columbia all are given representation for the first time since 1925 when The Associated Press first selected its All-America. Ohio State's last representative, in 1930, was Wes Fesler, also an end. The Buckeyes' 1942 representative, Shaw, is the only junior on the team. All the others are seniors.

This, the first war-time All-America in a quarter century, may well be the last for some time. Most of the hundreds of players who figured in the selections will be in the armed services long before another football season rolls around.

As a matter of fact, it is doubtful that another full-time collegiate season will be held until the war is over. Transportation and man-power problems may become insurmountable before the 1943 season.

But, if the 1942 campaign was the last for the duration, the boys who play the game made it a good one. It was the daffiest, most unpredictable season in memory, partly because sophomores and freshmen were used freely to make up shortages in varsity manpower.

But out of the excitement, one fact definitely was established -- that no section in the country could match the power of the Big Ten, with Ohio State, Wisconsin and Michigan, or the Southeast, with Georgia, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, and Alabama.

The caliber of play sloughed off considerably in most other sections, notably the southwest, east and far west.

The All-America backfield, as chosen, represents a nice balance of offensive and defensive strength.

TRAPPERS SHOOT AT FISH, GET WHALE

SALEM, N. J. —(INS)— Three muskrat trappers of this South Jersey town appeared to have a whale of a lot of success.

Not that the muskrats have been especially plentiful, but —

While fishing in nearby Mad Horse Creek, a salt water tributary of the Delaware, the woodsmen sighted what they thought was "a Jersey Devil." They blasted away with a shotgun and a 16-foot whale was washed up on the shore.

But, in this case at least, success has its shortcomings. Today, the three trappers have a dead whale on their hands and don't know what to do with it.

Kraeger gave Buffalo an early first period lead but Ritson tied it up before the session ended. The Bisons went ahead again in the second on Kaminsky's tally but Boothman deadlocked it again with a third period counter.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Precedent? . . . During the Eastern Intercollegiate Football association meeting the other day, Prexy Lew Andreas called upon the newspapermen (who normally aren't even admitted to the inner sanctum) to express their ideas. . . . He got an earful. . . . "You guys aren't doing your jobs right," one scribe told the athletic directors. "If you believe college athletics have a real value in wartime, why don't you go find out where you stand instead of waiting for someone to tell you to quit."

IDEA MAN.

The approach of the basketball season brings to mind another newspaperman with an idea, Ned Irish. . . . You may know the story of how Ned got tired of charging through crowds to get into the pint-sized local gyms and as a result moved basketball into the big-time sports class with his Madison Square Garden doubleheaders. . . . His main idea was to give the fans a comfortable place to see their favorite sport and to give them a good show for their money.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Jimmy Chapman, Macon (Ga.) Telegraph: "See by the papers that high school coaches will get 'B' gasoline rationing books for use in hauling basketball players in their private autos this winter. And where'll they 'B' when they get there on four gallons more per week?"

SERVICE DEPT.

Football and tank hunting are a lot alike according to Lieut. Clark Hetherington, former Oklahoma U. polo and gridiron performer. The guys who have gone through the football mill don't mind little discomforts like crawling under 40 yards of barbed wire and losing patches of skin. "It's just another game to them," he says.

STATE WRITES.

Two recent communications from West Virginia list the crack football players from that state performing elsewhere on college gridirons. . . . Top figure given is 44. . . . Apparently there's one state that can give Ohio an argument about being the best gridiron nursery.

Pete Reiser Goes To Army Jan. 1

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Outfielder Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers today was scheduled to be inducted into the army Jan. 1.

Reiser, National league batting king of 1941 when the Dodgers won the pennant, has had his preliminary physical examination, his Brooklyn draft board disclosed last night. He was reclassified from 3-A to 1-A on Dec. 1.

The 23-year-old athlete, who lives in St. Louis during the off-season, was married last spring to Patricia Hurst of St. Louis.

PLAN COAST TRIP

ATHENS, Ga. —(INS)— Coach Wallace Butts today announced the University of Georgia Bulldogs will leave Athens Dec. 18 for the west coast and their engagement Jan. 1 in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Cal.

PLANS TO CARRY ON FOR FATHER

Mary Sarg Changes Name To Make It Sound More Like Famous Dad's.

By GERALD F. DIETZ

NEW HOPE, Pa.—(U.P.)—Mary Sarg is going to carry on for her famous father, the late Tony Sarg, nationally known artist and marionette maker—even to the extent of changing the name Mary to Toni.

"Maybe, I'm being a little too egotistical about it all," she said.

Miss Sarg, who in private life is Mrs. Everett Miller, wife of an engineer, said she knows her limitations and intends to stay within them.

"I won't try to do anything with the puppets because that was strictly Tony Sarg—and I know I couldn't design his big balloons," she said. "But with the drawings, yes—although I didn't inherit his sense of humor, his way of making even a little dot look funny."

She said her father hadn't been able to finish the cover of his new animated book, "Tony Sarg's Treasure Book."

"I took his 'rough' and finished it," she said. "I told him just before he died and he was very pleased."

Miss Sarg has been living here in this Bucks county artists' colony but plans to go up to her father's shop in Nantucket, Mass., this summer to continue his work.

She said her father once made "staggering" sums—she thought about $80,000 a year—but during the World's Fair he "poured his earnings into his exhibit."

"When he went bankrupt," Miss Sarg continued, "he said with his typical sense of humor that his assets included two suits an overcoat and an old hat."

His estate was valued at not more than $5,000, she said.

Miss Sarg, who is now 30, said she was drawing at 3 but her father let her work alone until she was seven—"and then he plugged hard, trying to train me."

Approximately 90 per cent of all American homes are of wood frame construction.

Colored U. S. Soldiers Get Medals In England.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Two colored privates of the United States army have received medals from the Liverpool Shipwrights and Humane society for saving a Briton from drowning.

Clarence Miller of McComb, Miss., and Jimmie Flemings, Chancellor, Ala.

While they were sightseeing in Liverpool they saw a 52-year-old dockworker fall from a gangplank between a dock and a moored vessel. Both Miller and Flemings jumped in and kept the man afloat until a line was thrown to them.

Before the war the United Kingdom imported about 2,500 tons of pig bristles a year.

SAVING MILK

Calves raised on Calf Startena are saving milk much needed today by your country. One bag of Calf Startena replaces 40 gallons of milk. And Calf Startena grows big, vigorous, growthy calves. Economical, too—actually costs about ½ as much as milk at the present average U. S. price.
